IXeo is a new and exciting gateway for the independent traveller offering travel from anywhere to anywhere. It uses the latest cutting edge technology to provide users with unprecedented access - to over 12 million hotel rooms and 800 international airlines - always ensuring best value. All content is supported by fully descriptive and book-able destination information. From the best dive centre, to the top safari guide, top opera festivals and a secret hideaway hotel, IXeo really is a one stop destination solution.

IXeo's booking system enables users to tailor make their own trips in real time, taking advantage of rates provided directly by the supplier. But content isn't just price-driven, it is also quality and brand-driven from international five star to boutique. Navigation is fast and user-friendly, browsers can search either by 'hotel', 'motive' or 'destination'.

IXeo also introduces a new development in online travel. Travel planning is free, not guided and can also be assisted by IXeo's intuitive IX-concierge, who will come up with solutions and ideas from around the world... a personal and informed touch.

IXeo is a privately-owned company, founded by Graham Leslie, the former CEO of Serena Hotels, a subsidiary of the Aga Khan Fund for Economic Development. Graham Leslie says, 'The world is a big place, but through our insider knowledge, direct access to every country and supplier at all levels and fast navigation, we are making it ever more accessible to our users. It will also be fun. Our concierge is busy travelling the world, collecting information and ideas for those users who are looking for inspiration.'
